One of the most important baseball meetings of all time will be held in New Orleans next week. Policies of rethat the world championship series should be a two-team affair. One of the main arguments against the Fed-eral League was that there was no room for three majors. A three-cor-nered world series was held up as an atter impossibility—one that would rob the classic of its chief charm.

A reform in the world championship series is likely to develop before another season, perhaps at the minor league meeting in New Orleans. It has been suggested to cut down the tariff. Ban Johnson has gone on record as favoring a gate tax not to exceed the popular prices that prevail throughout the regularly scheduled championship games.

Two Reforms Suggested

There are two outs to this reform. Either must minimize the players' pool, which has thrown a shadow of suspicion on the integrity of the game. One scheme advanced is to declare a flat rate of $1,500 and $1,000 each to the winning and losing players, respectively, that figure in the annual fall classic. Another is to extend—at popular prices—the series from best four in seven to best five in nine games.

After all, George Bronder, the national javelin champion, is to return to Cornell University. At the last minute he reconsidered his decision to take up business in Havana. Bronder, despite stories that he will complete his education at the University of Pennsylvania, declares he will leave for Ithaca on December 9.

Fair Play''

State College, Penn., Nov. 8.—Penn State's stalwart freshman eleven, fresh from its triumph over the Penn yearlings, could not hold the 'varsity to-day. Captain Clark and his teammates scrimmaged for forty minutes against the best defence the freshmen could offer and the regulars tallied seven touchdowns. Five of them resulted from forward passes hurled to the backs and ends. Higgins, Ege and Cross figured prominently in the scoring. athlete's career. Cross figured prominently in the scoring.

Harlow's new offence for the Lehigh game seems strong. Jeff Clark celebrated his return to the rough work by tearing through the freshman line for long gains. His spectacular advancement of the ball did not, however, eclipse his brilliant interference. Whenever Hess or Ewing successfully turned the freshman ends it was Clark who took out the tacklers for them.

Neither Robb nor Beck took part in the signal work or the scrimmage. Both of them needed a rest. They were sent to the training quarters after a couple of turns around the track.
